Day 0
Sunday, July 21st

On Sunday, July 21st the Walker College of Business at Appalachian State University began its “Innovate for Good” initiative for Summer 2019. At the beginning of the day, camp session leaders, session assistants, and staff all gathered in Peacock Hall introducing one another and preparing for the arrival of the campers on Monday morning. After lunch, the session leaders and session assistants had the pleasure of hearing from Barbara Wixom, a Principal Research Scientist at MIT Sloan Center for Information Systems Research and colleague of Dr. Iyer, who talked in detail about how she was introduced to the STEM field and about how each and everyone’s lives, as well as her own, is being shaped or influenced by the world of technology. The session leaders and assistants then split up into their sections and discussed their game plan for the start of the camp the following day.
